

ALAT_Puzzle_Seven

Created by AZAALAS with EclipseCrossword — www.eclipsecrossword.com

Across

- Active at night.
- Drug that kills worms
- Parenteral methods of drug dosing are: intramuscular, _____, subcutaneous, intraperitoneal, intradermal, and intracardiac.
- Reddish material found in the tears and saliva of rats.
- Any living thing that carries disease.
- Behavioural condition where a mouse chews fur off another mouse.
- Intentional act of inducing painless death.
- Specialist who studies disease.
- Drug dosing routes include: inhalation, injectible, ocular, topical, _____, or rectal.
- Study of drug effects on organ systems.
- To do this means to isolate.
- Drug that kills pathogenic microorganisms.
- Two main categories of euthanasia: Physical and _____.

Down

- Specific causative agent of disease, such as virus or bacterium.
- Drug that induces unconsciousness
- Overgrowth of rodent incisors.
- Mouse with white coat and pink eyes.
- What may occur if litters are disturbed after parturition.
- Nonliving material that can transmit disease.
- To eliminate fighting male mice caged together the should be separated and housed _____.
- Healthy animals used to detect disease.
- Scientific name for lab mouse is Mus _____.
- Space between the anus and genital papilla.
- Drug that relieves pain
- Long Evans strain of rat is known as _____.