Arizona AALAS members, whatever their interest in lab animal science have the opportunity for professional growth through involvement in national and local meetings, participation in certification training programs and access to AALAS publications and educational materials. Each branch has its own educational agenda, scientific and technical presentations, workshops, tours of facilities, local training programs and regular social activities. Visit: www.azaalas.org

AZAALAS does not discriminate against individuals or groups regarding membership and/or event attendance. However, we reserve the right to deny membership or event registration and attendance to individuals for any reason, including, but not limited to an individual's or group's previous history of affiliation with organizations that make or have made a practice of opposing the beliefs, mission, and/or affiliation(s) of AZAALAS and/or has a prior history of negative interaction with AALAS

How do dogs reason about the world around them?

How are their minds similar and different from humans or other species?

What can dog cognition tell us about the processes of cognitive evolution?

How can an understanding of dog cognition improve training and selection of working dogs?
